M.Ed. – SPECIAL EDUCATION PEDAGOGY

Teacher Residency Program

One Year Residency

Residents complete a one-year residency working alongside a mentor teacher in a high-need school. During the residency 60% of the day is spent in the classroom and 40% of the day is allocated to completing online coursework requirements.

Small-group practicums allow for application of new knowledge and instructional practices.

Master's Degree Program

Online Coursework

Residents complete an online master's degree program at Eastern New Mexico University or another qualified university.

Upon completion of the program, participants are prepared to teach secondary math or science classes or serve special education students PreK-12 and complete the initial licensure process.

Program Benefits

Living Wage Salary

Residents receive a one-year living wage salary of $55,000 during the residency.

Professional Support

Participants receive intensive, focused professional development, coaching, mentoring, and job-embedded training.

The SWTQP partnership includes the College of Education and Technology at Eastern NM University, which has been recognized as a high-quality online teacher preparation program with a 97% student satisfaction rating and extensive experience in implementing teacher preparation programs. ENMU serves a diverse student population (35.6% Hispanic, 42.7% Caucasian, and 2.4% Native American). ENMU is a state approved teacher preparation program, and its master's degree/teacher licensure programs are accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation. The university will support teacher residents during their online coursework and the teacher residency component. As a member of the partnership, ENMU will collaborate with Three Rivers Teacher Quality Partnership staff to support an effective clinical experience.

Individuals currently participating in a master's degree program at a university other than ENMU might also qualify for the Teacher Quality Partnership residency if the master's degree program from the university meets the same requirements as the master's degree program at ENMU.
